CRIED HER EYES OUT.

Woman Result of Husband and Child Causes Her to Go Blind.

Mrs. Matilda Quitman, of 1382 Fifth avenue, New York, has cried herself blind, and may never recover her sight.
In grief over her dead husband and their little daughter Mrs. Quitman wept until her eyes were tearless and total darkness enveloped her. She is 32 years old, and her sightless eyes are large and black. A casual observer could not suspect that she could not see.

She was married in 1888. Her husband died in 1897, and her grief was intense. She wept for days at a time. Her eyes became dim. With money that had been left her she opened a grocery and delicatessen store, and customers often found her crying. In June last her seven-year-old daughter, Mabel, died, after an illness of two days. The mother was almost crazed. She cried until there came no tears at all, and only convulsive sobs shook her body.
Then it seemed that she was moving in twilight. She could not see to make up the books at the store, and her brother helped her.

They sent her to the Adirondacks last summer in hope that the change might benefit her. But she could not escape from her grief. She returned in two months—totally blind. Since that time she has had every sort of treatment—specialists, hypnotism and what not, but all have been unable to dispel the night that has engulfed her sight.

The doctors say the trouble is with the optic nerve, which has been depressed by a congested blood vessel.
They say that some violent shock may restore the sight. Electricity has failed to do it, and her cure may come from her own emotions.
"I feel that I shall get my sight back some time," she said.

TRICKED INTO BUYING FARM.

Wisconsin Man Finds He Has Paid a Good Price for Land He Does Not Want.

John M. Roberts finds that he has bought a farm near Racine, Wis., that he doesn't want, paying for it more than he deems it worth, as a result of a wrangle three years ago. Two strangers recently appeared at his farm and stated that they desired a farm in Racine county. His place, 155 acres, suited and they offered him $100 an acre for it. They asked if they could purchase the farm adjoining, which consisted of 80 acres, at $50 an acre. To bind the bargain they gave him $50 and he came into the city and paid $1,250 for the other place. The strangers were to call on him within three days, but have appeared.

The 80 acres which he purchased were at one time owned by him and were given to his son, who three years ago received a proposition from certain Racine people offering to trade a farm in Racine county for the 80 acres near Racine. This young Roberts agreed to do. Afterward the persons who made the proposition wanted to back down, but Roberts would not hear of it. Since that time the farm of 80 acres has been in the hands of these Racine parties.

TALLY-HO WEDDING.

New Youthful Lovers at New York Inaugurated a New Fad and Surprised Their Friends.

A youth and maiden, who are both 18, resolved to get married. The youth was Charles A. Contant, a student in Columbia university, New York city, and the maiden was Miss Hester L. Hanning. Inasmuch as they were of a novel age for marriage they decided on a novel form of wedding.
After much deliberation, in which the advice of their parents was not taken, they decided on a tally-ho wedding. Having invited eight of their young friends, the party started for a ride down Jerome avenue. At the rectory of St. James' Protestant Episcopal Church the coaching party came to a halt, and to the surprise of all but two the marriage announcement was made. Upon the appearance of Rev.
Dr. Charles Holt the couple were married.

The bride has been forgiven, but the bridegroom still languishes under the frown of his father's disapproval.
Young Contant, nevertheless, says that he will support his wife, although he cannot show whence he will draw an income.

CURFEW LAW FOR OSKOSH.

Wisconsin City's Women Would Keep Children at Home in the Evening.

The Twentieth Century club, the most influential woman's organization in Oskosh, is determined that there shall be a curfew law in active operation in that city this summer. At its annual meeting it decided to draw such an ordinance and present it to the common council.

In its resolutions the club avers that it is "the province and duty of women to take such action in public affairs as may be for the best interests of morality and good citizenship," and that "evil influences and consequent detriment to pure morals must necessarily result to children who are permitted to play about the streets during long evenings."

That the club will succeed in obtaining the passage of such a measure is not at all probable, as its membership includes all the leading women of the city, and it is uniformly successful in getting what it wants from the council.

Another reason for stay-at-homes.
It is said that the police of Oskosh are going to the extreme and will not allow children to be out past 8 o'clock. This will be a great benefit to the city, as it can be used by thousands of persons that aren't able to go.
